

- ① Write a review for an international magazine about a book which you have liked and think other students might enjoy.
- ② You have been asked to write a review of a short story for your school magazine. Your review should focus on how effective you think the beginning of the story is. You should also explain how enjoyable you think other students would find the text.
- ③ An English language magazine has asked readers for reviews of social networking websites to be included in a future issue. Your review should outline what one social networking website that you are familiar with can do. It should describe how you make use of the site and should explain how you feel the site could be improved.
- ④ The editor of your college website has asked you to write a review of two films you have seen recently, saying which one would be most suitable for an end-of-course film night at your college and saying why you would not choose the other film.
- ⑤ The food magazine parahoreca.com (www.parahoreca.com) is launching a publication in English and invites readers to send reviews of restaurants around the world they think are worth visiting. Send a review about a restaurant you really like including information not only about the food but also about the location, atmosphere and clientele.
